COOL KYRIACOU

📌 Greek womenswear designer Eleni Kyriacou launched her eponymous label in 2011 and has already developed a distinct and intriguing aesthetic. Kyriacou, who was apprenticed to Alexander McQueen and Emilio de la Morena, has combined her experience with her love of sustainability and textile experimentation, resulting in a brand which produces feminine and wearable clothes with a hint of the unexpected. Her current collection, Pele, the Volcano Goddess, is strongly influenced by images of lava, rich fire-like colours and layered metallics and embroidery, combined to emulate molten rock. While these pieces are designed for evening wear, Kyriacou's diffusion line from the same collection is a pared down, casual yet beautiful collection, visually more simple yet crafted with the same intensity of detail. HL

ATTICA CARES

📌 The new Carelab departments in the Attica stores at the City Link and Golden Hall malls are dedicated to holistic health and body care for people of all ages, from infant to adult. They offer a wide variety of products and services related to health, nutrition, hygiene and cosmetics. In the Carelabs, clients will find products from some of the most trusted local and international beauty brands; stalwarts such as Roc and Neutrogena sit alongside natural Greek cosmetics from Korres and Apivita. Although the Attica department stores are the largest in Greece, their friendly, highly knowledgeable staff maintain the personal touch and the Carelab experts are no different. Whether you know exactly what you're looking for or need guidance through the selection, you can be certain of a warm welcome and every assistance. HL

ELENA VOTSI

Elena Votsi first captured the public's attention when she was asked to design the medals for the 2004 Athens Olympics and today her designs are as popular as ever. She specialises in modern jewellery inspired by Greek myth and tradition as well as her native island of Hydra. Her pieces often feature strong graphic lines and colourful gemstones; these pointed hearts set with black, clear and bright magenta stones typify the range.
